DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-40 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bryan et al. in view of Marnichenko et al or Francesco et al (US Pat. 5,559,031) or Edmond et al. or Wayman et al. or Weiland et al. or Fukuzaki et al.

Bryan et al. discloses a process for the production of ethanol from corn where a roller mill is used for grinding the com (see page 38) and where the thin stillage (i.e. the supernatant after centrifugation of the stillage) is used as feedstock for the production of methane in an anaerobic digester (see page 43). The solids (which are defined in the present application as the particulate solids, i.e. not the dissolved solids, see page 6 of the application) are almost completely absent from the thin stillage (i.e. well below 1%).

Bryan et al. fails to disclose details concerning the particle size after milling and details concerning the methane reactor.

The prior art contains numerous disclosures where the influence of particle size in a process for the production of ethanol from biomass is discussed. Francesco et al (US Pat.

5,559,031) or Edmond et al. or Wayman et al. invariably direct the skilled person and also disclose to the use of Small (1 mm) particle sizes.

The methane reactors in the treatment of alcohol slops (stillage) are known in the prior art (see Weiland et al.). Also high performance methane reactors are used (see Fukuzaki et al.).

Consequently, the subject matter of claims 1-40 corresponds merely to the application to the different subprocesses of a bioethanol plant. There is no surprising, unexpected or beneficial effect, therefore the invention is considered to within the skill of one of ordinary skill in the art.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

4. Claims 16-21 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

A broad range or limitation together with a narrow range or limitation that falls within the broad range or limitation (in the same claim) is considered indefinite, since the resulting claim does not clearly set forth the metes and bounds of the patent protection desired. See MPEP § 2173.05(c). Note the explanation given by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences in Ex parte Wu, 10 USPQ2d 2031, 2033 (Bd. Pat. App. & Inter. 1989), as to where broad language is followed by "such as" and then narrow language. The Board stated that this can render a claim indefinite by raising a question or doubt as to whether the feature introduced by such language is (a) merely exemplary of the remainder of the claim, and therefore not required, or (b) a required feature of the claims. Note also, for example, the decisions of Ex parte Steigewald, 131 USPQ 74 (Bd. App. 1961); Ex parte Hall, 83 USPQ 38 (Bd. App. 1948); and Ex parte Hasche, 86 USPQ 481 (Bd. App. 1949).

In the present instance, claim 16 recites the broad recitation "a particle size less than 1mm", and the claim also recites "preferably less than 0,6 mm" which is the narrower statement of the range/limitation.
